Introduction:

In the final project, our group explores the treatment of data imbalance problem by extending the case of Amazon Fine Food Reviews. The data source comes from GitHub and Kaggle, which are both creditable source database.

We illustrate the final project by four main files, including recording, PPT slides, project reports, and code (with PDF version). These files have been organized into different folders separately.